F1 Singapore

Not so good for me.

Qualified with an absolue PB in 11th place.....fast movers here!
I got a good start and Manfred in front of me jumped the start so I got by. Two mishaps later I was 3rd!
Alas AGM had bad luck and mentioned in chat that his wheel was not connecting. I don't know how many saw the chat but I think, especially in a series where there is no overall result standings , a restart is the thing to do. I called for it in TS but only one driver supported it. I think that is rather poor. All of us want our Sunday night fun and shouldn't be robbed of it because of such a glitch. Is it really that important to go on as if nothing happened? Lap one was messy anyway and I got from 10th to 3rd in one lap but I don't have much fun if a (very regularly attending) driver is lost because of technical difficulties. I understand why an admin chose to let the drivers on track decide but in a case like this ab overruling call will be accepted I'm sure.
THe request for restart should be made in chat I heard but sorry, I have to stop my car to do that. Or we all need a speed button for that and then it's gonna get messy with too easily made requests I'm a afraid.
I'm open for discussion, in english and german. :)

For the race, I got DQ for ignoring S&G. Alas.

That was a little bit boring race to see from the pits :woohoo: .

After a practice and qualy session without any problem, server goes to race and repentinely no wheel recognition. I had no time to switch off on usb and do all the things so... bad luck for me.

First at all I appreciate a lot your concern and help with the attempt to restart. But... I have to say I am in favor of not restarting the races for any reason.

Will I spoil 22 people´s qualifying session for my race? noooup, not me. Maybe if its a 4fun race with only 7 racers on the road... would be funnier to be one more in the road, but they would be very specific conditions that would benefit everyone (or almost everyone).
So, that silence in TS imagine that it meant: "I will spoil my classification to play 23 instead of 22?..." and its logical.

Anyway, I would really like the races to be governed by this common sense., but I suppose it is still a point of view.

On the other hand, I have repaired my pedal pottentiometer, my wheel´s optical sensor, but I cannot do anything with the shitty software that is the Logitech profiler :angry:
Thank you Logitech....thank you.
