
Bude Touring Car Cup 2008

Geschrieben von Geedee - 24.12.2007 12:52

I think the introduction of this GTC-TC-76 Touring Car Cup is great news.

I thought I would do this thread for those of us without the ability to speak anything other than our own language and also for those who do not speak German either.

There will be 10 rounds and the first round will be held at the Hockenheim GP circuit on Sunday 6th January 2008.

GMT = Greenwich Mean Time.....CET = Central European Time

Practice at..6pm GMT.....7pm CET

Qualifying...7pm GMT.....8pm CET

Race starts..8pm GMT.....9pm CET

There will be a choice of GTC-TC-76 cars to choose from so this should be very great fun and interesting to see if the tortoise will be the hare

Do not forget:

Sunday 2008-01-06 -GTC-TC-76 on Hockenheim GP

Cheers for the lend of your ears,

Gee-Deeman :geedee:

Hi Gee!

Okay....I swear that I keep it in mind that you guys in Britain are actually one hour back with BST. Wonder how it is in Scandinavian countries, because there are some people f.e. from Finnland in here. I think it's necessary to mention what basic time is used and it will be done in the English versions of posters for the events next year. Sorry, I forgot this so far. I think this is essential.

By the way, I think this will be very interesting and I hope there will be a great mixture of cars.

Cheers

Jochen

Merry Christmas.

IÄ'm in with a Porsche 914/6.B)

I will try to drive in all 10 runs, but iÄ'm a shiftworker.

Hope there are not only new style racetracks.

See you on track

Bernd

Yes BeetleJo your right about Finland being yet another time zone.

:blush: Silly old me made a mistake with the Britâ€™s time. BST is British Summer Time and not British Standard Time and we also have GMT which is Greenwich Mean Time. Donâ€™t worry we all get confused with our stupid time system. Our summer time begins in March & ends in October and our clocks are turned back or forwards ...Lol! This is because our farmers prefer it this way.

Germany is in CET - Central European Time.

The United Kingdom is in GMT (Greenwich Mean Time)
We are 1 hour behind German time.
7pm in England = 8pm in Germany.

Finland may be in FFT (Flying Fin Time) (I made that up, he he) They use EET (Eastern European Time)
They are 1 hour ahead of German time.
8pm in Germany = 9pm in Finland.

See this map on Wikipedia to get a better idea of time zones in Europe:
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Image:Time_zones_of_Europe.svg

I have a headache now ...going for a lie down, he he!

Hmm, interesting point. I hope that we race on high quality tracks suitable for high power cars, like Kyalami, Watkins Glen and similar, not gokart tracks or low-detail circuits.

A race calendar would be great!

Anyway, I'm looking forward the Championship, I even made a personal skin for the events, I hope it'll uploaded soon! :)

Hi bug,

you have to download all tracks and cars from the altbierbude to join the races. Best way to get all is using the download-script.

If it is done you can easily join all races and events by connecting the altbierbuden-server in the GTL-Lobby.

Hope to see you soon.

Hi bug,

one thing in addition to B8man...

the password will be written beneath the event-poster on the altbierbude... ;)

I hope I can get rid of ugly hardware-bugs until sunday... :blink:

Still I cannot decide between the 916 and the 914... hehe

cu on track,

Georg

hi all

thanks B8man and Moorhuhn for the information.

iÂ´m looking forward to enter, it is my first on-line championship. IÂ´m already using the script and have all tracks and all cars. Just one more question, did i have to do the all championship with the same car?

cya all, perhaps tonight...

Hi Bug,

you are allowed to change cars with every event, as this is not "league"-racing. :lol:

Moin zusammen (Hi together),

I'll try to be there also (possibly not always :(), because it sounds nice to have a Touring Car Championship with my favourite car here on the "Bude" (BMW CSL):woohoo: :woohoo: :woohoo:

If you all agree, the "Rodenstock CSL" (Blue-yellow-red) will be mine, because I worked for that Company in the past :blush: and I'm a fan of "Klaus Ludwig" (Famous german touring car driver which drove that car)!

Cu on track!;)

Regards,
Holgi
