A WIP track pack (7 tracks) resampling a 1970 Tour through the Balcans...

Hi Gianni,

first of all "Welcome to the Bude".

Nice to see that you support our community now directly by posting in our humble bulletin boards as well.
(Hehe, maybe you still have some roots here due to your stay in DE you mentioned long time ago?)

Looking forward for some more nice scratch build tracks of your region, hope I could add some value to your efforts to get good results in GTL too.

cheers,
Uwe

Hi Gianni,

the good old GM2-engine of GTL doesn't like overlapping faces, this will lead into flashing structures.

I'll try to fix it ...

cheers,
Uwe <http://www.altbierbude.de/images/fbfiles/images/overlap.jpg>

Aw: Behind the Iron Curtain GT

Posted by gstaraz - 2009/12/14 18:48

I see...:( ...

-20 faces (triangles :) on that piece of track can be deleted, but the remaining 4 adjacent to the joint should be repositioned to follow the curve of the main path... I just hope that repositioning the vertexes will not affect the "bending of the neighbours pannels..."

Another solution that comes into my mind is to delete even the remaining 4, and to cover the hole with a kind of wall (or with a rumble strip...)

...damn...:evil: ...wish I knew that before...

Cheers <http://www.altbierbude.de/images/fbfiles/images/overlap-7d3ad2f871860a822a6abe257cfcfab2.jpg>

Hi Gianni,

how's about such solution?

<http://www.altbierbude.de/images/fbfiles/images/overlap2.jpg>

Do you have the used road texture with a dotted line on the left side at hands?

Guess this would have a nice effect... ;)

Hehe... ;)

...give me 3 minutes and I'll make the texture...

Great job Uwe (...not that I had any doubt about the results ;) )

It looks exactly how I imagined it! ...You ROCK!!!

...In a few days I'll get back on it, and retexture all the objects (walls trees paddock...)... I'll add also some more trackside objects.

I'll send You the update and separately the instances for the new added objects...

Hi Uwe! :woohoo:

Great way to avoid the shadow caster on walls and regularly shaped objects ;) ; ...and, if done properly, it looks even better than with the shadows turned on... although it requires a bit more work with P.shop on the background picture...

...Now, looking at the picture, there is almost no difference between the GTL terrain mapping and the rFactor background blending

it's my first try with this technique. I've used Blender's uvtexture painting feature to 'draw' directly onto the 3d mesh. Finished this "bake map" now. Hope you like the result. ;-)

Great the job on the garages! ...someone turned the lights on in the offices :) ...and they polished the windows to... LOL

-About the semi transparent gravel blends...:
They look "spitze!" (maybe a lighter texture would blend better with the surrounding material... I`ll try a few colour variations when I start "retexturing" things...)

Thanks to the author for the loading screen, I like it!

...anyway, a lot more to be done on this track... I would say another two weeks until I finish all that I wanted...

@ gstaraz & DerDumeklemmer

I have only just started to read this thread and have found it to be very exciting.

The workmanship & detail looks really fine and I am looking forward to driving the tracks and to looking around the track to see what has been done.

I think a lot of guys miss all the fantastic work when all they do is practice, qualify and race. They should take time to see where they can and cannot drive and admire the detail.

Thank you both for your great efforts.

Cheers,

Re:Aw: Behind the Iron Curtain GT

Posted by gstaraz - 2010/01/27 17:02

Thanks for the kind words !!!

@geedee:

You got the point "right in the middle"...
...well, actually, there are two kind of tracks;

-The ones that has been built having in mind a good competitive, and interesting racing...
-The ones that was built trying to to bring You the "atmosphere" of the Era when they were in use.

Of course, both are interesting in it`s own way, but I prefere a good "painting" to a good technical drawing ...

...so, for everyone that will try our tracks, I`d like You, to approach them as a "Tourist" driver rather than as a driving ACE... :)

Have fun with them, and enjoy the environment...
Gianni.

I've just watched two of the video-previews of the tracks, and they really look awesome! Thank you for the great work, Gianni.

There's only one thing that makes me wonder - when will my Autoupdater grab these tracks?! ;)

Cheers

Hi Smoke m8,

The Autoupdater is for the Bude downloads only and these tracks are on NoGrip, so you will have to download and install them manually.

You will only be able to drive them off line or if some other server is running them for the moment.

I'm sure DerDumeklemmer has plans to put these tracks on the Bude as they are too good to miss.

Cheers,

Gee-Deeman

They will not be included in the Autoupdater database for the moment; until Uwe puts his magic hands on them. Those are all pre-releases, and I'm sure they have still some small bugs, that fore not appropriate for the updater ; but I will put the related download links in this thread for all of You to test and download at Your own risk :lol:
Gianni.

Thank you for your swift reply Gianni.

I just hope Uwe gets his hands on them soon, he he!

Cheers and good luck to you both.

Thanks for teaching me, Gordon. It never came to my mind that the Autoupdater is for the Bude downloads only :P

This was just a little provoking question to see when the tracks will be here. My "problem" is that I only drive online, therefore I hope the tracks will be here soon :)

Then let's summon DerDumeklemmer :D

Cheers

No problem Scyrion, the tables were hidden on the backside of the "Bude Bar" :lol:

-I'm not uploading the beta jet, `cause it has grown to 120 MB, and it takes ages to upload it; so I'll wait another few days before I upload a new Version btw.

Do You have a low poly variation of the Scirocco model (or any other car 1970-1980) to be used as a static side track object ?

Baggersee Racing Resort rc1

Download:

<http://www.megaupload.com/?d=7HRLR2X7> GTR2

<http://www.altbierbude.de/images/fbfiles/images/BaggRR.jpg>

This is a full detail release, that includes the objects from all the 5 (3) layouts, so expect it to be a little heavy on fps

-Subsequent releases will be divided, every layout as a separate track, so, better fps are to be expected :)

ps.

A lighter version will be uploaded tomorrow (called: Baggersee SS) for those with weaker rigs

Cheers, and enjoy the track

Hi Racer

Rijeka!

Bei der schoenen aber gefaehrlichen Strecke faellt mir sofort der Name eines der besten Deutschen Motorradrennfahrer ein: Reinhold Roth

http://de.wikipedia.org/wiki/Reinhold\_Roth

In Rijeka hatte er Juni 1990 den schweren Unfall der sein Leben und das seiner Familie fuer immer aenderte! Ohne diesen Unfall haette er bestimmt eine grosse Zukunft im Motorradrennsport gehabt!
