

---

Ranking list

Geschrieben von mic64 - 10.10.2012 20:29

---

It's seem there is some trouble with ranling list for example i have some laps time on woodwalle and it says no time registred pls look at it
tks coop amts Mic64

=====

Aw: Ranking list

Geschrieben von KaiDasEi - 10.10.2012 20:37

---

Please take a look at the basis of valuation.

EDIT:
Only currently available vehicle types and tracks will be used for ranking.I am not sure, but maybe this is the problem here.

=====

Aw: Ranking list

Geschrieben von Ron Zacapa - 10.10.2012 21:26

---

The ranking list is a overrated statistical spreadsheet anyway. The importance of the ranking list is mostly academical and not a true reflection of who is a consistingly fast and good simracer. We know who the really fast guys are and I am not one of them.
While it is very flattering to see your name up in #10, #3 or #1 on the ranking list, it actually means nothing ie. there's no real value to it with one exception. He who has over the years driven many 100's of thousands of km on the Altbierbude will in all likelyhood be fairly high up on the ranking list. Vehicles and tracks change all the time, so the ranking list can be seen as a very volatile indicator of a mechanism that is in constant flux.

=====

Aw: Ranking list

Geschrieben von Moorhuhn - 11.10.2012 12:12

---

That's true.

if you want to settle way up the list, take some cars nobody else drives often (TVR, Triumph, Jaguar, etc.) and do some laps with them. The competition is not nearly as high as with 911, Alfa, ETCC, etc....

=====

Re:Aw: Ranking list

Geschrieben von CasparGTL - 11.10.2012 22:28

---

Ron Zacapa wrote:
The ranking list is a overrated statistical spreadsheet anyway. The importance of the ranking list is mostly academical and not a true reflection of who is a consistingly fast and good simracer. We know who the really fast guys are and I am not one of them.
While it is very flattering to see your name up in #10, #3 or #1 on the ranking list, it actually means nothing ie. there's no real value to it with one exception. He who has over the years driven many 100's of thousands of km on the Altbierbude will in all likelyhood be fairly high up on the ranking list. Vehicles and tracks change all the time, so the ranking list can be seen as a very volatile indicator of a mechanism that is in constant flux.

I love it.

=====

---

Re:Aw: Ranking list

Geschrieben von mic64 - 13.10.2012 10:30

---

i agree with you Ron and Morhum.

Actually ranking list give point to only the first car. Why don't give point for the five or ten best car. like that it will oblige drivers to use many different car and not to be specialised of less than 10 cars. Like that i am quite sure good drivers like manfred haupental will be alway on top of the list

=====